THE NEW SAFE DEPOSIT.

Supplying a Greatly Needed Convenience in the Lower Part of the City.

The formal opening of the Washington Safe Deposit company, No. 916 Pennsylvania avenue, commenced yesterday. At the entrance of the building is the main office. This is separated from the rest of the ground floor by a high and strong iron railing, which is by a high and strong iron railing, which is passed through at a gate, secured by a strong lock. Next to the railing, along both walls, are compartments for the purpose of arranging privately articles which are to be deposited. The vaults—two in number, one immediately over the other—are nine feet high, twenty-six feet long, and eleven feet wide. The walls are of brick, twenty inches thick, with an additional steel plate 12 inches thick. There are two immense doors to each vault. The inner doors weigh five tons each and the outer ones six tons cach. The inner are fastened by time locks and the outer by combination of large size. These vaults are furnished with iron size. These vaults are furnished with iron drawers in which deposits are made. The locks of these require two kevs to open them. One key is given to the proprietor of the drawer and the other is kept at the office. It is therefore necessary to have the help of one of the employes to get into the drawers, though no one at the wault can open the drawer in the absence of the depositor. These drawers are of various sizes, and will rent at prices rauging from $10 to $100 per annum. The upper floors are to be used for general storage purposes.

The establishment of this safe deposit at this point is a great convenience to the lower part of the city, and it will unquestionably meet with a large patronage at once. It sup-plies a want which was greatly felt. The company is thoroughly energetic, and the superintendent is a gentleman thoroughly conversant with all the details of the basiness and alive to the requirements of his position. Filling the need so long felt in the lower part of the city it commends itself at once to the attention of the community.

The Emancipation Celebration.

A conference meeting of representatives from the three districts of East Washington and the chief marshal, presidents, and secretaries of the emancipation celebration, was held last evening at Congress ball, A, between First and Second streets southeast. The chief marshal and president submitted the arrangements they had already effected, which were unanimously approved, and exwhich were unanimously approved, and expressions of appreciation were made. A great many prominent colored citizens of East Washington were present. Addresses were made by Messra, George W. Stewart, Gilbert L. Jov. Frederick A. Dyson, Robert Dorsey, Col. George D. Graham, Edward S. Atkinson, Benjamin Walters, William H. Johnson, Daniel Stilyard, James Garner, and James Legnard. The chief marshal will an James Leonard. The chief marshal will appoint his aids in a few days and announce them. G. L. Joy, chief marshal for the emancipation celebration, has appointed Col. George D. Graham chief of staff.

GEORGE W. MORGAN.

The Organ and Harp Concertat the Congregational Church.

A large and appreciate audience assembled at the Congregational church last evening to listen to the Morgan organ and harp concert. That the announcement of Geo. W. Morgan's organ recitals is sufficient to attract a large house should surprise no one who has made an intelligent study of the great artist's peran intelligent study of the great artist's per-formances. The organ has been styled the "King of Instruments;" strictly speaking it should be considered a collection of instru-ments. Just here is where so many perform-ers fall. They lio not understand the secret of combinations which results from a knowledge of orchestration. Many players rest satisfied with noisy or odd offects varied by pleasing melodics and skillful petal manipu-Istion, not realizing the higher purposes and capabilities of the great instrument which does not yield its secret to every touch any more than the statue of Memnon responded to every chance breath. Morgan is in all respects a great artist. Hard work and conscientious practice have combined to render his execution faultless. His renditions are marked by accuracy, good taste, and a rare interpretation of the work which he places before you. His various combinations display a knowledge of instruments and the manner in which they should be blended to produce the best possible effects, while his pedal play-ing is unrivalled. His organ selections for the evening con-

His organ selections for the evening consisted of Handel's overture to "Samson," "Storm Fantasia," by Lemmona, and "Nuptial March," by Guilmant. In response to an encore, Mr. Morgan rendered a simple melody in which he gave a specimen of pedal playing perfectly superb. The "Storm Fantasia" is a descriptive piece and displayed the great organist's powers in every conceivable variety.

Miss Keller, the soprano of the occasion, sang an air and variation by Rode, and Gounod's Ave Maria with harp and organ accompaniment. She possesses good execution and paniment. She possesses good execution and rendered the parts assigned her in good style, and was the recipient of two cucores. The "Echo Song" and "Angel's Serenade," showed her voice to better advantage than showed her voice to better advantage than the other selections.

Miss Morgan, by her harp playin g, won the admiration of all listeners. The fantasia, from "Un Ballo in Maschera," Oberthur's "Fairy Legend," and the duo for harp and organ, Oberthur's "Nun's Prayer," were rendered with exquisite taste and skill.

THE BENCH SHOW.

Arrangements Perfected to Exhibit the Animals To-day.

The rows of kennels are in position at Masonic temple for the dog show which begins this morning, and a large number of dogs were put in them last night. There is a row of kennels on each side of the hall which last night displayed all of the characteristics of a dog show. There are also rows of kennels in the center of the hall. The dining room opposite the hall will be used as the judges room, and the dogs will be exhib-ited in the center. "This is a happy surprise," said Miner. "I sacrificed the sweetness of the music for the sake of speed. Mendelssohu's "Roudo Capriccioso" was finely rondered. The selections from Chopin were the weakest part of the evening's performance. The "Love Song" from "The Valkyria" the "Spinning Song" from the "Flying Dutchman," by Wagner, and the Hungarian Rhapsody, by Liszt, were rendered with a force and accuracy that were simply superb. Of the other selections the same criticism may be applied. Prof. Faelten showed that he was equally at home in expressing alike had been looking forward to death, and was making preparations to meet my God." majestic measures of Beethoven or Rubinstein. His execution is nearly perfect. With an accurate rendering of the music is blended a delicacy of touch simply wonderful. His conception of the music shows him to be an intelligent artist. His audience was fairly carried away, many good musicians being present who admired and appreciated the performance. He was enthusiastically applauded after every selection. What is remarkable about these entertainments is the memory of Prof. Faelten. This is the third performance which he has given, at each of which an entirely different programme has been arranged. Yet each has been rendered without the use of a single note.
